About WAVE

More than one of every four students who entered the ninth grade in the United States this year will drop out of school before graduation. In DC alone, only half of the students make it to graduation. These young people, disconnected from school, work, and community, face an endless string of low-wage jobs or chronic unemployment -- an unconscionable waste of economic capacity and potential. Yet, with just a bit of compassion and a well-managed program of personal development, education, and job training, these young people can and do thrive. For 38 years, WAVE has helped motivate over 550,000 youth to complete school and lead productive lives.
